

We made a piece that had three different styles. There was solo moments and a duet and moments when we would all come together. I think this represented the idea of community and mosaic well but the idea could be clearer by making our group phrases more tight and similar. Even in the group phrases we would still be dancing three different styles, because of this I think it looked a little messy. Adding specific arms that we all do exactly the same would clean up the mess, in my opinion.
