

This process has been very interesting. I learned a lot about working together as a group, and sharing my ideas with other people. There was only one day that I missed class time with my group members and I don't think that made the creative process harder because even though I wasn't there one day I talked to my group members and they caught me up with the changes that they made during dance and once I went back to class we were ready to work as a group.

Rehearsing was initially difficult because we couldn't come up with things to add on to our dance. But once we improvised we looked back at our videos and added some of the sections of our solos into our dance. The videos were extremely helpful cause we looked back at them whenever we had to see what our dance looked liked and if we had to change or fix things that didn't look right or looked like they didn't work.

The outcome of our dance was very nice, I think that overall we could have had more facials throughout the dance and we could have made the dance slightly longer. But I thought that what we had was very good and I think the people in our group even though we are very different dancers we came together and combined our ideas and had a really nice outcome. I would definitely like to do this assignment again with a different group of people to see how I work with a different dancers and what the outcome is.
