

Today's class we performed our dance that we have been working on. My group needs to be more specific with counts and have everyone pitch in ideas. We also talked about rethinking our theme so that we all have different little themes that creates a bigger theme in the end. Our group will use more levels and with our solos, we agreed on drawing more to our solos. One of the critiques to think about in our group was doing the same move but maybe making it into a turn, or a leap, or a pause. We got a lot of good compliments on when we did our trust fall and walked us to the center of the stage.
